So begins the Gettysburg Campaign, Lee's second invasion of the North in less than a year. Platt, presented the headquarters flag of the Sixth Army Corps to the Association of Vermont Officers with the following letter: "This flag should be especially dear and sacred to the old Vermont brigade, as it is the only one that our beloved Sedgwick ever used while he commanded the immortal 6th Corps. However, the sound of the weapon sent up the alarm, and the Confederates halted and deployed skirmishers.

What drew the army to Gettysburg and gave it strategic importance was its offensive would upset Union plans for a summer campaign, relieve a Virginia countryside exhausted by war, and allow the Army of Northern Virginia to live off the land in Pennsylvania.
